- 4.1.4 1827-30, Buenos Aires: Letters from T Duguid, of Duguid Holland & Co
1. 1827 Feb, Buenos Aires: Statement of the capital, issues, discounted bills, and government debt of the Bank of Buenos Aires, at 30 Dec 1826 (this statement was enclosed in a letter to Barings, which has not been preserved)
  2. 1830 18 Apr: Politics and finance. General Paz; General Rosas; need for a strong government; bad state of the finances
  3. 1830 24 May: Sending duplicate of HC4.1.4.2; little change in the political situation. See also HC4.1.11 and HC3.2
- 4.1.5 1827 21 Apr, Buenos Aires: Miguel de Riglos to Francis Baring
South American affairs: Loss of Portuguese vessels with their complements in Rio de la Plata; new constitution for Peru in defiance of General Bolivar; currency
- 4.1.6 1831 Dec-1832 Jan, Buenos Aires: Letters (2), being correspondence between Woodbine Parish of Buenos Aires, and Manuel J Garcia, Finance Minister, Buenos Aires
- 1831 31 Dec: Woodbine Parish to Garcia
The writer was about to visit England, and suggested that he might take with him for discussion in London, proposals of the Buenos Aires government on the question of how that government intended to meet its obligations to the English bondholders of the Buenos Aires loan. The establishment of peace in Buenos Aires, and the likelihood of its continuance, made it incumbent upon the Buenos Aires government to consider its obligations to the English bondholders
- 1832 19 Jan: Garcia to Woodbine Parish
Agreeing that the Buenos Aires government was anxious to honour its obligations; outlining a plan for doing so, whereby repayment might be made in part by the grant of lots of land in Patagonia; pointing out the value and importance of Patagonia; expressing satisfaction that Woodbine Parish should be the negotiator of this scheme in London
- 4.1.7 1832 2 Apr, Buenos Aires: Statement (copy) by the Secretary, the State Department. Acknowledging receipt by the government of Buenos Aires of the appeal by Barings and by representatives of the English bondholders of the Buenos Aires loan. (The appeal set forth the necessity for the Buenos Aires government to pay the dividends due on the bonds). But regretting that it was impossible for the government to do so on account of the civil war, still raging in the Province, and of the droughts of three successive years which had destroyed the flocks on which the prosperity of Buenos Aires depended. Nothing could be done for the time being. The results of the discussions to be undertaken by Woodbine Parish were awaited (HC4.1.6)
- 4.1.8 c1832: Unsigned memorandum: 'Proposal for liquidating the affairs of Buenos Aires'
- 4.1.9 1832-56, Buenos Aires: Letters from Zimmerman Frazier & Co, merchants

House Correspondence - Buenos Aires

HC4

- 1&2. 1832 17 Sep, Buenos Aires: Zimmerman & Co to Joshua Bates.
Proposals, specified, for a business connection between Barings and Zimmermans; Mr Charles Holland, of Duguid Holland & Co, Buenos Aires, to discuss the proposals on his arrival in Great Britain
3. 1832 22 Sep: Zimmerman & Co to Barings
Finance: desire of the Buenos Aires government to raise a loan of one million dollars immediately, and to offer as security the duties levied for the amortization of the bank-paper; asking if Barings would be interested in this, and offering the services of Zimmermans as negotiated; the project might be in the interests of British holders of the former loan
4. 1834 Jan: Zimmerman & Co to Barings
About British creditors and the London loan to Buenos Aires: proposals for honouring these creditors; the part of Barings in these proposals
5. 1834 12 Mar: Zimmerman & Co to Barings
Financial situation of Buenos Aires: payment of British creditors postponed by Garcia, the Finance Minister; the government proposed to raise two million dollars of public funds, and one million from sale of public lands; likelihood that the government would agree to grant this three million dollars as commission to anybody who would make an immediate loan of up to one million dollars; asked if Barings would consider this proposition
6. 1834 8 Apr: Zimmerman & Co to Barings
Asking Barings advice about an offer which has been made by a 'speculator in the three million of fondos publicos, namely that he would transfer them to us or our London friends for drafts of £15,000 which he would redeem by shipments to the London house gradually as he could dispose of the fondos which were to be transferred in proportion as property went forward...'
7. 1834 5 Sep: Zimmerman & Co to Barings
Stating that the question of the London loan was subordinate to the whole political situation in Buenos Aires; the reform of the government was an absolute necessity
8. 1834 20 Dec: Zimmerman & Co to Barings
Political situation: its effect on commerce
9. 1836 2 Jun: Zimmerman & Co to Barings
Declining to do business with Mr Paravicini; proposal by the government of Buenos Aires to sell state lands in order to liquidate the remaining part of the state loan; with a newspaper cutting, ca 16 May 1836, referring to this
10. 1839 25 Jan: Zimmerman & Co to Barings

4.1.34 1857 Jan-Nov, Buenos Aires, etc: Letters of George H White to Barings

Note: For documents of George White's visit to Buenos Aires in 1852-53, as assistant to Ferdinand White, see HC4.1.24.

In 1857 he sailed from Southampton in the ship Tamar on 9 Jan and landed in Buenos Aires on 14 Mar. In Oct 1856 the Buenos Aires government had proposed to Barings a plan for the settlement of the claims of the holders of Buenos Aires bonds. George White's task was to bring about such a settlement, based on the proposal of Oct 1856, with some modifications.

In a memorandum, 7 Jan 1857, White noted that there were then in circulation one thousand nine hundred and fifty four Buenos Aires bonds of £500 each, a total of £977,000. The last payment of interest had been in Jul 1829. The accumulated interest due from Jul 1829 to Jan 1857 (over 27 years) at 6% was £1,612,050.

In his negotiations with Riestra, the Finance Minister, White was much helped by WD Christie, the British Minister at Parana, who had come to Buenos Aires on behalf of the British Government to settle the question of the Buenos Aires loan of 1824.

On 1 Oct 1857 White reported the conclusion of a satisfactory settlement for the gradual redemption of the original bonds, and for the issue of new bonds for the payment of arrears of interest and the establishment of a sinking fund. The money was to be raised by the Buenos Aires government by rent charges on certain public lands. A Bill giving effect on this settlement was finally passed in the Buenos Aires legislature on 28 Oct 1857, and White left that place on 2 Dec.

The documents concern his voyage to Buenos Aires; negotiations with Norberto de la Riestra, Finance Minister; visit to Parana to see government land which might be conceded to the Buenos Aires bond holders in compensation for arrears of interest on the bonds; conclusion of the negotiation; the financial and political condition of Buenos Aires.

Historical Note

Nicolas Bouwer entered Barings in about 1863. Both he and his younger brother were proteges of the Borski family of Amsterdam (see HC8.8 - particularly the letters dated 27 Apr 1863 and 23 Aug 1873). It was at the request and recommendation of William Borski the younger, that Thomas Baring (1799-1873) took the young Nicolas into the house. There he was a success and on 23 Aug 1873 William Borski the younger wrote to Barings to thank them for the good care they had taken of 'the young Bouwer, on the occasion of the new career which is opening before him'. This was three years before Nicolas Bouwer went to Buenos Aires. If in the intervening years, he ceased to be a member of the house, or was employed therein in some special capacity, there is no record of the fact in Barings' archives. Nicolas Bouwer was appointed agent of Barings in the Argentine in Nov 1876. His appointment was for three years at a salary of £1,500 a year. In their instructions to him of that month Barings outlined their main interests in Argentina, the care of which were to be Bouwer's special concern. These were:

1. Buenos Aires Drainage & Waterworks, for which Barings had brought out a loan of £2 million in 1873
2. The Bank of the Province of Buenos Aires, who had a large open credit from Barings, and who were responsible for the transmission to London of the interest on the loans of 1871 (HC4.1.46) and 1873

House Correspondence - Buenos Aires

3. The Western Railroad Co (HC4.1.48-49) which had a credit of £100,000 with Barings

Besides these three particular interests, Bouwer was also to report suitable mercantile operations which might be proposed to him. He sailed from Liverpool, probably on 19 Nov 1876, and reached Buenos Aires after a trying voyage on 9 Dec.

The Argentine republic had been established after the fall of the dictator Rosas in 1852. But the Province of Buenos Aires had seceded, and the full development of the republic could not begin until she rejoined in 1859. The first president to rule over the united republic was Bartholomew Mitre (1862-68), and both he and his successor, Domingo Sarmiento (1868-74), were politically moderate and wise. The main question was that of central versus provincial control, and with that was closely connected the position of Buenos Aires, which was both provincial and federal capital. The question was not settled until 1880 when the seat of the provincial government moved to La Plata. Meanwhile, however, particularly under the presidency of Sarmiento, the economic expansion of Argentina increased rapidly. President Avellaneda (1874-80) continued the policy of expansion.

This was the state of political and economic affairs during the period of Nicolas Bouwer's agency. Barings was playing a large part in the expanding economy. A decade (1880-90) of unprecedented peace and economic development was approaching.

As well as the main subjects mentioned above, the letters describe the political scene in Buenos Aires, and include frequent reports on federal and provincial finances. Up to November 1877 each letter has an index of subjects.

4.1.116 1890 Sep-Oct, Buenos Aires: The mission of Vistorino de la Plaza to London as Financial Agent of the Argentine government. See also HC 4.1.122

Letters of introduction to Barings from the President of the Republic (Carlos Pellegrini) and the Finance Minister (Fidel Lopez); outlining the financial difficulties of Argentina and their solution

The letters of Arthur Bowden Smith (HC4.1.177) and of Essex E Reade (HC4.1.124-25) to Barings

A note on the original condition of these documents and their treatment by TL Ingram, subsequent to their organisation

A number of the letters in both these classes was later required as evidence in Chancery Court actions such as International Finance Co versus Barings (see LEG 58). To make them available for this purpose, copies were made of them or of extracts from them.

In the case of extracts, the passages in the letters required to be copied were indicated to the typist by covering up the writing not required. This covering up was done in two ways: either by folding the sheet and pinning down the fold; or by pinning separate slips of paper over the text, thus concealing it. In each case steel pins were used.

In preparing the documents for permanent preservation the pins have been removed and the following methods used to indicate what the original form of the documents was:

- a) In the case of the folded sheets, these have been left folded, and the matching pinholes will be easily discernible
- b) In the case of concealment of the text under slips of paper, one edge of such slips has been hinged so that the original form of the document is preserved, but the covered text may now be read

The letters of EE Reade, 1894

These letters were originally contained in two portfolios labelled respectively 'Reade 1 Jan - 30 Jun 1894' and 'Reade 1 Jul - 31 Dec 1894'. Each portfolio was also labelled 'Letters already copied by Miss Bartlett'. The telegrams for this year were made up into a separate bundle.

The letters have now been removed from the portfolio and made up into new bundles, and the telegrams have been brought into sequence with the letters. The portfolios have been kept.

1890-91: Letters from Arthur Bowden Smith to Barings

Arthur Bowden Smith was born c1860; entered Barings 1880; retired 1918; died Sep 1945.

There is a photographic portrait of him, taken in 1903 in DEP 218

In Nov 1890 Arthur Bowden Smith, who was a confidential clerk at Barings, and at that time aged 30 or 31 years, was sent out to Buenos Aires with power of attorney to effect the immediate transfer to Barings of properties belonging to SB Hale & Co (HC4.1.71) as security against their uncovered credits with Barings. He left England on 6 Nov 1890, was at Rio on the 27th, and arrived at Buenos Aires on 3 Dec. Meanwhile Barings had been compelled to seek the assistance of the Bank of England, and the protracted liquidation of the affairs of the 'old firm' had begun. In Jul 1891 Bowden Smith was superseded in the agency by Essex E Reade, but remained to assist the latter until Nov 1892 when he returned to Bishopsgate. For the cash account of his agency, see HC 4.1.118. For Reade's letters, see HC4.1.124-125

The main subjects of Bowden Smith's letters are:-

1890-91: The affairs of SB Hale & Co: the partners; Barings balances of South American accounts (May 1891); character of Nicolas Bouwer (Jun 1891)

1891: Edward Casey and the Curumalan estate
Banks in Buenos Aires and Montevideo
Argentine railways, particularly Carlos Casado and the West of Santa Fe.
Buenos Aires Drainage and Waterworks (Obras de Salubridad)

The following may also be noted:

1891: Bowden Smith urgently desires to return to England (Feb); his confidence in himself returns and he proposes that he should remain in Argentina as president of the Curumalan Estate Co (Jun); he announces his engagement to be married (Aug)
The death of TC Baring (Apr)

Politics: Revolution in the province of Cordoba; the Union Civica (May, Jun)

Uruguay: Politics; Montevideo loan; government accounts (Oct, Dec)

4.1.118

1892 9 Dec, London: A Bowden Smith's account of receipts and expenses of his mission to Buenos Aires, 1890 Dec to 1892 Dec; with his receipt, 5 Nov 1890, to Barings for £500 on account

4.1.119

1890 7 Nov, London: City of Buenos Aires Tramway Co Ltd to Barings
Sending copy of a petition sent by the chairman of three Buenos Aires tram companies to the Finance Minister (Plaza) complaining at the fall in value of Argentine currency and seeking permission to raise tram fares

On 29 Oct 1881 the Buenos Aires Provincial Government granted to Angel Plaza Montero a concession of land in the Curamalan region of the province between Buenos Aires and Bahia Blanca. Its area was 300,000 hectares, or 111 leagues. The hectare, containing 10,000 square metres, was the normal area measurement for agricultural land.

By Apr 1882 (see HC 4.1.65, 1882) the concession had been acquired by Eduardo Casey, an Anglo-Argentine business man, who, in Oct 1884, formed the Curamalan Co (Sociedad La Curamalan) with a capital of four million dollars, moneda nacional, to take over the concession. Casey, who owned most of the shares, became President with wide powers, and the other directors were his nominees. The manager of the whole estate was J Sewell.

Soon after the formation of the company, 10 leagues of the original concession were disposed of, leaving the company with 101 leagues or 272,973 hectares. Besides Curamalan there were five main settlements within this reduced estate, namely: Sauce Corto (which later became Colonia Coronel Suarez, with Sauce Corto as its main estancia), Arroyo Corto, Pigue, Saavedra and La Cascada.

For the next five years, until 1889, Curamalan made progress. Colonists settled there under the terms of the concession and their flocks and herds increased. The method of colonisation was that lots of land, based on the hectare, were mortgaged to settlers who, by repaying the mortgage to the company from profits in the development of the land, gradually became possessed of the freehold. The area of the company's estate was thus progressively diminished. By 1888 a flour mill, built at a cost of £15,000, was functioning at Pigue, and another larger mill was planned for Sauce Corto. A valuable stud farm at Curamalan earned high prices in the Buenos Aires market. Most important of all, the Great Southern Railway of the province was extended to pass through the estate, and four of the main settlements had stations on the line.

In October 1888 Barings issued in London, on behalf of the company, £500,000 7% first mortgage bonds. The mortgage was to be redeemed in ten years, 1898. Their prospectus, dated 18 Oct 1888, contained a memorandum concerning the estate written by Eduardo Casey eight months before. According to this the population was then 2,100 and was expected to reach 10,000 by 1893. The crops for the season (Jan to May 1888) were valued at about £120,000 - mainly wheat, maize and potatoes. The livestock (cattle, horses, sheep and pigs) was worth £250,000, and the value of the land itself was about £925,676. At this time the £ sterling was worth $7.40.

A second mortgage for £300,000 was given to SB Hale & Co of Buenos Aires (HC 4.1.71) in Nov 1889, and a third mortgage for £200,000 was given to the same firm in Jan 1890. On both occasions the money was advanced by Barings. The second and third were consolidated into a second mortgage of £500,000 on 4 Sep 1890.

During the company's good years, Eduardo Casey (unknown, it seems, to Hale & Co, and certainly unknown to Barings) had become involved in many irregular speculations.

For example, the first mortgage contract of 1888 stipulated that all money received by the company from colonists for their land should be applied to the sinking fund. But Casey invested such money in an unsuccessful Elevator Company, and in Buenos Aires provincial cédulas. Further, he made contracts with Tornquist & Co of Buenos Aires (HC4.1.99) and others for delivery of future produce of the estate, receiving payment in advance. And in 1890 the collapse of the Buenos Aires market caused a severe drop in the profits of the estate, particularly those derived from the sale of horses.

Thus the company found itself in very grave difficulties, and defaulted on the payment of the first mortgage coupon due on 1 Nov 1890. Hale & Co thereupon applied to the Argentine courts, who ordered the 'marks', or titles to the livestock on the estate, to be transferred to Hale & Co, and an inspector, Eric Smith, to be appointed to supervise the administration of the company.

One of the first tasks of EE Reade, when he arrived in Buenos Aires as Barings' representative in Jul 1891, was to examine the company's affairs and take all steps necessary to protect the interest of the bondholders. He was able to show that the general prospects of the estate were encouraging, and that it would be against the best interests of the bondholders to press forward with the foreclosing proceedings begun by Hale & Co, for these would result in the loss of the livestock which was, potentially, the most profitable factor in the estate. Foreclosure proceedings were, therefore, suspended for the time being. Eduardo Casey, and his friends on the company's board, were made to resign, and in Sep 1891 a new board was elected which included W Kelsey as president, Miles A Passman as secretary, and EE Reade as the representative of Barings and the English bondholders.

In this way the management of the company was put on a sound basis. It was still heavily in debt, and it was clear that the restoration of its fortunes would take a long time. The directors were confident of its eventual success, but in the first few years after 1890 Barings were under considerable pressure from impatient bondholders, many of whom were trust companies, and there was always the danger that these would insist on foreclosure. In 1892 a remittance was made by the company towards the service of the first mortgage, and thereafter the twice-yearly coupons were regularly met. In 1887/8 the life of the first mortgage was extended to 1908, and a scheme was devised for funding a part of the income against the arrears of interest acquired in 1890 to 1892.

The position of the second mortgage was not clear. The first had a charge on the land itself. The livestock belonged to the second mortgage, and the titles to the livestock had been transferred to Hale & Co in Nov 1890. No payment was made on the second mortgage until 1897. Between 1890 and 1900 the validity of the second mortgage was disputed by various shareholders, who accused Barings of unwarrantably diverting the proceeds of the estate towards the service of the first mortgage. In each case litigation was avoided by the purchase by Barings of the interest of the dissatisfied shareholders.

By the end of 1900 Barings had in this way acquired enough shares to give them the two thirds majority required to enable them to wind up the company. This was done early in 1901 when the whole of the assets of the Argentine company, subject to the two mortgages, were transferred to an English company, the Curamalan Land Co Ltd, with headquarters in London and a branch office (Sociedad Anonima La Curamalan) in Buenos Aires. All the shares were held by Barings, who appointed the directors both in London and Buenos Aires, where Miles A Pasman became president.

In 1902 proposals were made to EE Reade and Alfred Mildmay, both then present in Buenos Aires, by Ernesto Tornquist for the purchase of the limited company. He offered £300,000, half in cash and half in new shares, and insisted on the formation of an Argentine company and the destruction of the second mortgage bonds. These terms were accepted.

The Curamalan Land Co Ltd was wound up, and on 15 Nov 1902 Tornquist's new company, Sociedad Anonima Estancia y Colonias Curamalan, was registered in Buenos Aires. Its mortgage debt was £459,400, but the good management of the previous decade was continued, with Miles A Pasman as managing director, and by 1905 the company had redeemed the mortgage.

The statutes of the new company set a limit of 20 years, till 1923, on its existence, the object being progressively to reduce the area of the estate by sales to colonists until finally a buyer might be found to take the remainder outright. Barings maintained a close interest in the company's affairs. They received detailed annual reports and maps showing the company's progress, and, over the period, were represented on the board by EE Reade, Windham Baring and Alfred Mildmay.

The sale of the estate had not been achieved when the company's term ended in 1923, and the term was extended for another ten years. Finally, in Mar 1929, agreement was reached with Frank Houlder, of Houlder Brothers & Co, the shipping firm, for the sale to him of the balance of the estate, which by that time consisted solely of Colonia Curamalan. The area was 6,553 hectares. Houlder paid pesos 350 per hectare, a total of pesos 2,293,550; and for the stock he paid pesos 400,000. The peso at the day's rate of exchange was one shilling and eight pence three farthings. It was a result satisfactory to all concerned.

Note on the classification of the documents:

Some of the documents were contained in a tin deed box in the partners' strongroom. Amongst them evidence was found that others of the same series were held by the Stock Department under the number 997. These documents, contained in some 20 parcels, were transferred from the Stock Department in Sep 1965, and have now been arranged and listed along with the documents found in the deed box

The form of the bundles as found has been preserved as far as possible, and their labels have been kept either with the appropriate bundles or under HC4.1.190

The documents are as follows:

4.1.172 1897-1903: The scheme for restoring the market value of the first mortgage bonds (4 bundles)

Note: The scheme proposed that the repayment date of the bonds should be extended from 1898 to 1908, at the latest, and that £15 per £100 bond of the interest should be funded. Bondholders were invited to deposit their bonds with Barings, who, together with FB Praed, of the Bankers' Investment Trust, were to act as Trustees. In exchange the bondholders were to receive Scrip ('A' Scrip) bearing interest at 6%. The scheme also proposed that the second mortgage bonds should be deposited with the trustees to provide additional security for the 'A' scrip. The holders of second mortgage bonds were to receive 'B' scrip, ranking after the 'A'. The scheme was successfully carried out, and in 1903 Barings were able to redeem both 'A' and 'B' scrip

The documents, which are arranged in four parts, are:

- Part I 1897-1903: General papers and correspondence
The preparation of the scheme; legal opinions of Norton, Rose & Co; agreement in Buenos Aires; specimens of 'A' Scrip and its certificate; quotation on the London Stock Exchange; the progress of the scheme; the sale of Curamalan Estate, 1903; the proceeds used for the redemption of the stock

1899: Documents concerning the proposed Argentine Alcohol Loan

This proposed loan was part of the Argentine government's endeavour to raise money to liquidate its floating debt in Europe (cf the proposals for obtaining an advance - HC4.1.204)

There were two proposals for the Alcohol Loan: firstly that an issue should be made of Argentine treasury bills; and secondly that the government should create bonds to be issued in London, Paris, Berlin and Brussels. In each case the loan was to be specially guaranteed by the alcohol duties received by the republic

The proposals never materialised; indeed negotiations hardly reached the stage of fixing the amount of the loan, its price or rate of interest

Those interested in the negotiation were Barings and JS Morgan & Co (HC3.126) in London; the Banque de Paris et des Pays Bas (HC7.55) in Paris; the Deutsche Bank (HC9.32) and Discontogesellschaft (HC9.31) in Berlin; and de Bary & Co (HC13.15) in Brussels

4.5.33 1862-63, Mexico: Letters from George H White to Barings

Part 1 : 1862

Part 2 : 1863

Historical Note: In July 1861 the Mexican Government suspended payment on their foreign debts for two years. On this, Britain and France broke off diplomatic relations with Mexico. The situation there worsened and at the end of October 1861 Britain, France and Spain signed a convention for the joint invasion of Mexico. Spanish troops took Veracruz in December and early in January 1862 a British naval and a French military force arrived in Mexico

George White was sent to Mexico as the representative of the committee of Mexican bondholders. He left England about January 1862, and reached Veracruz on 1 March. He was accompanied by Carey Bowden. The British, French and Spanish Ministers in Mexico were respectively Sir Charles Wyke, M de Saligny and General Prim

1862

The letters describe the chaotic state of Mexico, and events there; the conciliatory attitude of the British and Spanish Ministers; the determination of France to continue the war; the French proposal that the Archduke Maximilian of Austria should be made Emperor of Mexico; the refusal of the French to sign a peace treaty; separate treaties signed by Britain and Spain; withdrawal of British and Spanish forces; arrival of French reinforcements under General Forey; their advance from Veracruz towards Puebla and Mexico City

Characters of leading personalities, Mexican and foreign

Mexican finance; the resources of the customs house at Veracruz; Lizardi & Co (HC4.5.4); Jecker & Co (HC4.5.23)

1863: General condition of Mexico

Jul-Sep: The Archduke Maximilian and the crown of Mexico

9 Oct: Memorandum on the present state of Mexican affairs

9 Nov: White's arrangements for departure from Mexico (he left Veracruz about 1 Dec and had arrived at Southampton by 30 Dec 1863)

1887-98: No documents

4.5.54 1899 Apr-Jul: Documents concerning the Mexican Conversion Loan of 1899
The initiative in this operation was at first taken by the National City Bank of New York, who were assured by the Mexican Finance Minister, Jose Y Limantour, that they would get the business. The bank intended to bring in Barings in London to be the issuing house there, and Baring Magoun & Co in New York. But the Mexican government changed its plans and brought in a German Syndicate and JP Morgan & Co, New York, and JS Morgan & Co, London.

Barings and Baring Magoun thus took only a small part of the issue, some of which they passed on to Hope & Co (HC8.1). The issue as eventually made was for £23 million at 5%. The price was 96. The purpose was the conversion of the 6% external loans of 1888, 1890 and 1893, and the 5% loan of 1889. The syndicate consisted of JP Morgan & Co and the National City Bank in New York; JS Morgan & Co in London (HC3.126); S Bleichroder (HC9.30), the Deutsche Bank (HC9.32), and the Dresdner Bank in Berlin; and the National Bank of Mexico (HC4.5.46)

- 4.7.1 1824-38, Berbice, British Guiana: The case of Wolfert Katz
Wolfert Katz was the owner of an estate of seven plantations, producing coffee, sugar and cocoa, in Berbice. In 1824 he was in England and by deed dated 30 and 31 Aug 1824, he granted a mortgage on the estate to Barings against his debt with them. But the conveyance was invalid because it did not comply with the law of mortgage in Berbice, and Barings' title was bad. Katz raised other mortgages on the same estate on his return to Berbice
1 bundle
- Barings attempted to make good their title in court at Berbice through their attorney there, John Cameron, and through W Ross, of Edinburgh, who went to Berbice as their representative in 1831. Counsel's opinion was sought as to an appeal to the King in Council if the case was lost in Berbice
The case was invalidated by the death of Katz between Sep and Nov 1835
- The documents include:
1827 5 Mar: Inventory of Cruysburg (not belonging to Katz): slaves, buildings, cultivations, furniture and other appurtenances
1828 29 Jan: Statements by W Katz of the estate and accounts
1830 2 Mar: Counsel's opinion (J Henry) on Barings' title to the estate
1831 24 Sep: W Ross's arrival at Berbice

Letters from Spain, attempting to interest Barings in trade in Spanish goods, particularly wool; asking Barings to accept bills of Carasco & Sons, merchants, of Madrid and Caceres
- 4.8.3 1824-33: Documents relating to the unsuccessful adventures in Bengal goods of the ship Lady Campbell
- Correspondence and accounts:
- In 1824, when the political situation had steadied in Spain, the government of that country sought to restore its trade with Asia. To this end The Royal Philippine Co Ltd contracted with William Lonergan & Co, merchants, of Cadiz, to bring a consignment of Bengal produce to Spain
- Lonergan & Co chartered the British ship Lady Campbell, and sent it to Coringa, Madras. The task of procuring Bengal goods and loading them into the ship was entrusted to Mendiata Vriarte & Co, merchants of Calcutta, who were to take a commission. Barings provided the money to Mendiata & Co to enable them to make the considerable purchases of Bengal cloth and saltpetre for the Lady Campbell. For this, Barings were to have a large share of the profits of the adventure.
- The adventure failed because Mendiata & Co greatly exceeded their credit in the purchase of saltpetre, and because 20 bales of long cloth were captured by pirates. The sale of the goods in Spain went very slowly. Mendiata & Co were declared bankrupt in 1827. The matter was finally settled by arbitration in 1833
- 4.8.4 1839 19 Nov, [Madrid ?]: Printed news-sheet, Spanish language: El Castellano, No 1027
